

Human sustainability in the maritime industry

Human sustainability equals dignity and respect for every human being across the maritime industry. It is about the human side of the maritime industry and represents a call for more humanly sustainable practices, especially across five areas:

- Inclusion & Diversity
- Human Rights
- Human Wellbeing
- Human Safety
- Future Skills & Competences

Human sustainability has emerged as increasingly important during the pandemic, which highlighted the need of our industry to extend the existing sustainability agenda in maritime to also include Human Sustainability – both at sea and onshore.
